YEARS OF GREAT DESIGN

How has the design world changed during the past decade? And what has remained business as usual? On the occasion of NYC&G's 10th anniversary, we polled some of our favorite industry experts for their opinions about the past, the present, and the future. One thing's for certain: The interior design field is more interesting and compelling than ever before

"The general public's keen interest in design has created a huge shift. It's nice to see our industry have more relevance and popularity."

—Jesse Carrier and Mara Miller, designers

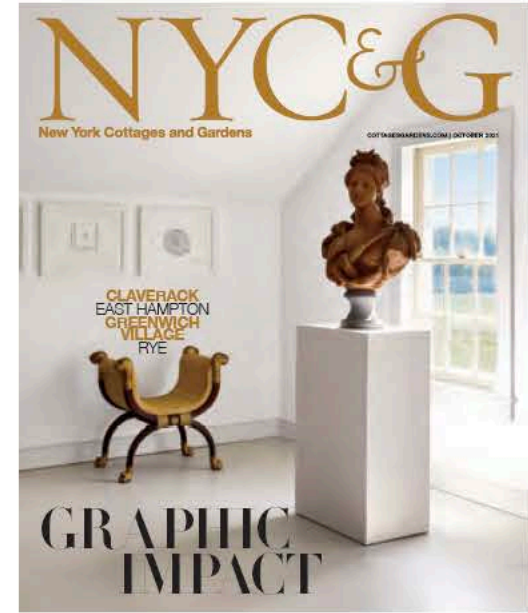

"Social media has turned the picture-perfect interior into a valuable commodity. It's time to build a crypto portfolio!"

—Amy Lau, designer

“‘Originality’ and ‘one of a kind’ will become increasingly more important as design products are made more accessible to wider audiences.”
 —Amy Lau, designer

“Clients will continue to need a professional who can manage their expectations and budgets, while maximizing the return in design investments.”
 —West Chin, architect
